

“Let Me Learn of Jesus”

Books for Children in Ghana

With their mission offerings, your child is teaching children in Ghana about Jesus – and how to read.

Two years ago in Bawku, Ghana, Rev. Nicholas Salifu started the area’s first Lutheran school. What started out as a pre-school has now grown to three grades with more than 300 students – over half of whom come from Muslim families.

The students use two books as their reading textbooks and for religion classes: A Child’s Garden of Bible Stories and Luther’s Small Catechism, both translated and published into the Kusaal language by the Lutheran Heritage Foundation.

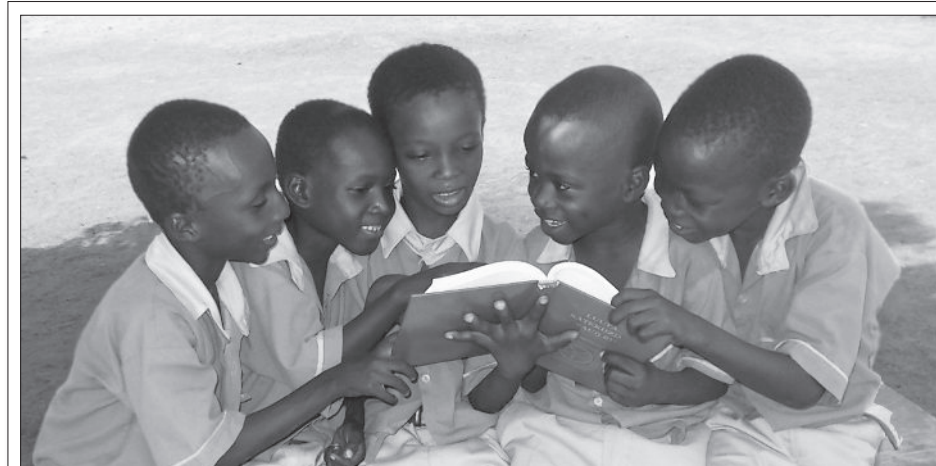

But now, the churches and schools in northern Ghana have another problem: there aren’t enough books to go around.

Just $5 introduces a Ghana child to Jesus!

With their school or Sunday school mission offerings, your children have chosen to adopt LHF's "Let Me Learn of Jesus" project, which provides the books that introduce Ghana's children to the Savior.

A Child's Garden of Stories and Luther's Small Catechism, translated into the people's own languages, will be given to students at Concordia Preparatory School in Bawku, Ghana, as well as to families throughout the region.

Just $5 – that's all it costs to provide one of these books for a family in Ghana. For many, it will be the only book they own. Imagine how many lives will be touched with the Good News of Jesus Christ through your chapel offerings of $10, $25 or even $100!

Ghana's grown-ups need books, too.

In the countryside of northern Ghana, only about 20 percent of the adults can read and write. But Lutheran adult literacy classes are helping to change that.

Best of all: Once the students have graduated from the program, they receive their own copies of the Small Catechism, translated by LHF into the Kusaal language.
